Ike Appeals for A-Ship, Dixon-Yates Projects

GOP Leaders Promise to Try To Pass Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower appealed strongly today for congressional approval of two recently rebuffered projects—his proposed nuclear powered atom-peace merchant ship and the Dixon-Yates electric plant.

Republican congressional leaders promised to try in both houses to get the two projects back on the legislative track.

The congressional Atomic Energy Committee turned thumbs down on the atomic "showboat" Monday. And last week the House Appropriations Committee rejected a 6½-million-dollar item for building transmission lines from the Dixon-Yates power plant site to the Tennessee Valley Authority. This transmission link is the heart of the whole project.

Mr. Eisenhower made his appeal for reinstatement of the two projects at his weekly conference with Republican legislative leaders. Senate GOP Leader William F. Knowland (Calif.) said the consensus of the conference was that the atomic ship "program is constructive and will serve a very useful purpose of promoting atoms for peace."

A-Sharing Endorsed

Knowland said he believes Congress will approve the nuclear merchantman before the session is over. The joint committee vote against it was 9 to 7.

The atomic committee strongly endorsed, however, Mr. Eisenhower's new atom-sharing program and voted him 270 million dollars for atomic construction not including the nuclear ship.

The House Maritime Committee last week approved a bill to authorize hull construction of two ships to be powered by atomic engines. But that project cannot be carried out unless Congress authorizes construction of the engines.

The atomic committee refused to okay Mr. Eisenhower's proposed atom-for-peace merchantman—dubbed a "showboat" by hostile congressmen—but it did authorize a $25-million-dollar expenditure on a separate project, development of an atomic engine for large surface ships.

Rejected By Committee
The Dixon-Yates project, a subject of bitter controversy, originally was proposed by the President to provide TVA at Memphis with electrical energy offsetting in part the drain on TVA power supplies by Atomic Energy Commission plants elsewhere.

It would be financed, built, and operated by private enterprise as a substitute for the frequently defeated proposal to add a new steam power plant to the government-owned TVA system at Fulton, Tenn.

Without the power link defeated by the House Appropriations Committee the yet-to-be-built Dixon-Yates plant could not serve the purpose intended for it by the President.

The House committee, in voting 23-19 against the link, proposed instead that the 6½ million dollars be applied to funds for the Fulton plant which never has been authorized.

The House will begin debate on the issue Wednesday.

Fined After Auto Collision on Rt. 13

Richard D. Gee, 23, of Eddyville was fined $100 and $25.60 court costs this morning upon his plea of guilty to reckless driving before County Judge Trafton Dennis as a result of a collision on Route 13 a mile and a half west of town.

Deputy Sheriff Everett Sneed said Gee's car figured in a collision with one occupied by Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Harper of Harrisburg Route 1 about 6:45 p. m. yesterday as both vehicles were travelling eastward.

Sneed said that Gee drove off the pavement, got back on and cut in front of the Harper car, colliding with it.

Expect Draft Ike Resolution By Young GOP

DETROIT (AP)—A "draft Eisenhower for re-election" movement was shaping up today among the vanguard of 1,600 delegates expected to attend the Young Republican national convention here.

Early arrivals for the convention, which begins Wednesday, were drafting resolutions expressing confidence in the President and urging him to seek re-election.

Some of the early arrivals said they would support a resolution to draft Mr. Eisenhower if he does not seek the nomination.

Allen Miller, Michigan chairman of the group, and Sullivan Barnes, Kansas City, Mo., national chairman, said they visited Mr. Eisenhower in Washington three weeks ago and urged him to attend the convention. They said the President's full schedule forced him to decline the invitation, however.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon will substitute for the President and address the Young Republicans Friday.

Paul Frick, 51, Newspaperman At Marion, Dies

MARION, Ill. (AP)—Paul Frick, 51, Marion newspaperman who reported the gang wars and Ku Klux Klan activities in the 1920s, died Monday afternoon.

Frick was a feature writer and former circulation manager for the Marion Daily Republican. A native of Herrin, he was stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage early Sunday.

Frick was a young reporter for the Daily Republican when the gang wars broke out during the prohibition era in southern Illinois. He came to know members of the gangs and finally, when one gang threatened his life, Frick was forced to leave Williamson county.

He enlisted in the Army which he made his career until he retired in 1948. Frick rejoined the Daily Republican staff in 1953 and had planned to resign July 1 because of poor health.

He is survived by his sister, Mrs. Frank Stallions, Herrin.

The body was taken to the Storme funeral home in Herrin. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday in the First Baptist church at Herrin.

Judge Reynolds Hears Cases in Circuit Court

Circuit Judge C. Ross Reynolds yesterday sat on the Saline county bench in place of Judge Clarence E. Wright, scheduled to preside during the June term of circuit court, because the Vienna judge had disqualified himself from hearing a case in Williamson county, where he has been presiding.

Judge Wright, from Carbondale, is hearing the case for Judge Reynolds at Marion and as soon as it is completed he will come to Harrisburg, with Judge Reynolds returning to Marion.

This is a non-jury term and Judge Reynolds yesterday disposed of all four cases set for the day.

In a lawsuit over a note, Jack E. Barnett, administrator of the estate of G. R. Barnett, vs. Ted Steele, Reynolds ruled in favor of Barnett in the sum of $11,610 and costs. Barnett was represented by Atty. Lloyd H. Melton and Atty. L. M. Hancock of Harrisburg. Steele by Atty. Serial Thompson of Harrisburg and the law firm, Crain and Hall, Centralia.

Gavenda Bros. Inc. vs. Raymond F. Hines was another suit heard. Gavenda Bros. sought the return of mine equipment on a replevin but Reynolds denied this and awarded the plaintiffs $1,000. Atty. Harry L. McCabe and Atty. Arlie O. Boswell represented the plaintiffs, Atty. Trafton Dennis the defendants.

In the lawsuit, Myrtle Parrish vs. the Prudential Insurance Company of America, Judge Reynolds ruled in favor of the company. The plaintiff's husband, who had a Prudential policy with a war clause in it was killed during the Korean conflict. Collection was sought on the contention that the Korean action had never been designated as a war but as a police action. However, Judge Reynolds said that courts already have ruled that the action was a war in such cases.

Mrs. Parrish was represented by the law firm, Rumsey and Dennis, the insurance company by Atty. DeWitt Twente.

Judge Reynolds in the lawsuit, Herman Temple vs. Joyce Wilson, arising out of a motor vehicle collision, ruled that both parties were at fault. Temple was represented by Atty. Melton, Wilson by Atty. Twente.

There was no court today but sessions will be resumed tomorrow.

Brown Inquest Tonight at Eldorado

The inquest into the death of Claude Brown, 27, victim of a train-auto crash near Eldorado Saturday, will be held at seven o'clock tonight at the Eldorado city hall, Coroner Elmer M. Gibbons announced today.

State's Atty. John Gutknecht said the Cook county grand jury would be asked today to indict Mrs. Seay for murder. Witnesses in the case were to go before the grand jury after an inquest earlier.

Both Mrs. Seay and her husband were held on open charges.

Mrs. Seay said Cabay got "fresh" in his apartment and refused to let her go home. She took Cabay's service revolver from a table and ordered him to take her home, she said. When the couple arrived at her apartment building, she ordered Cabay to get out of his automobile ahead of her, she told police.

Mrs. Seay said the gun went off accidentally. Cabay was shot thru the back with the bullet nearly going through his body.

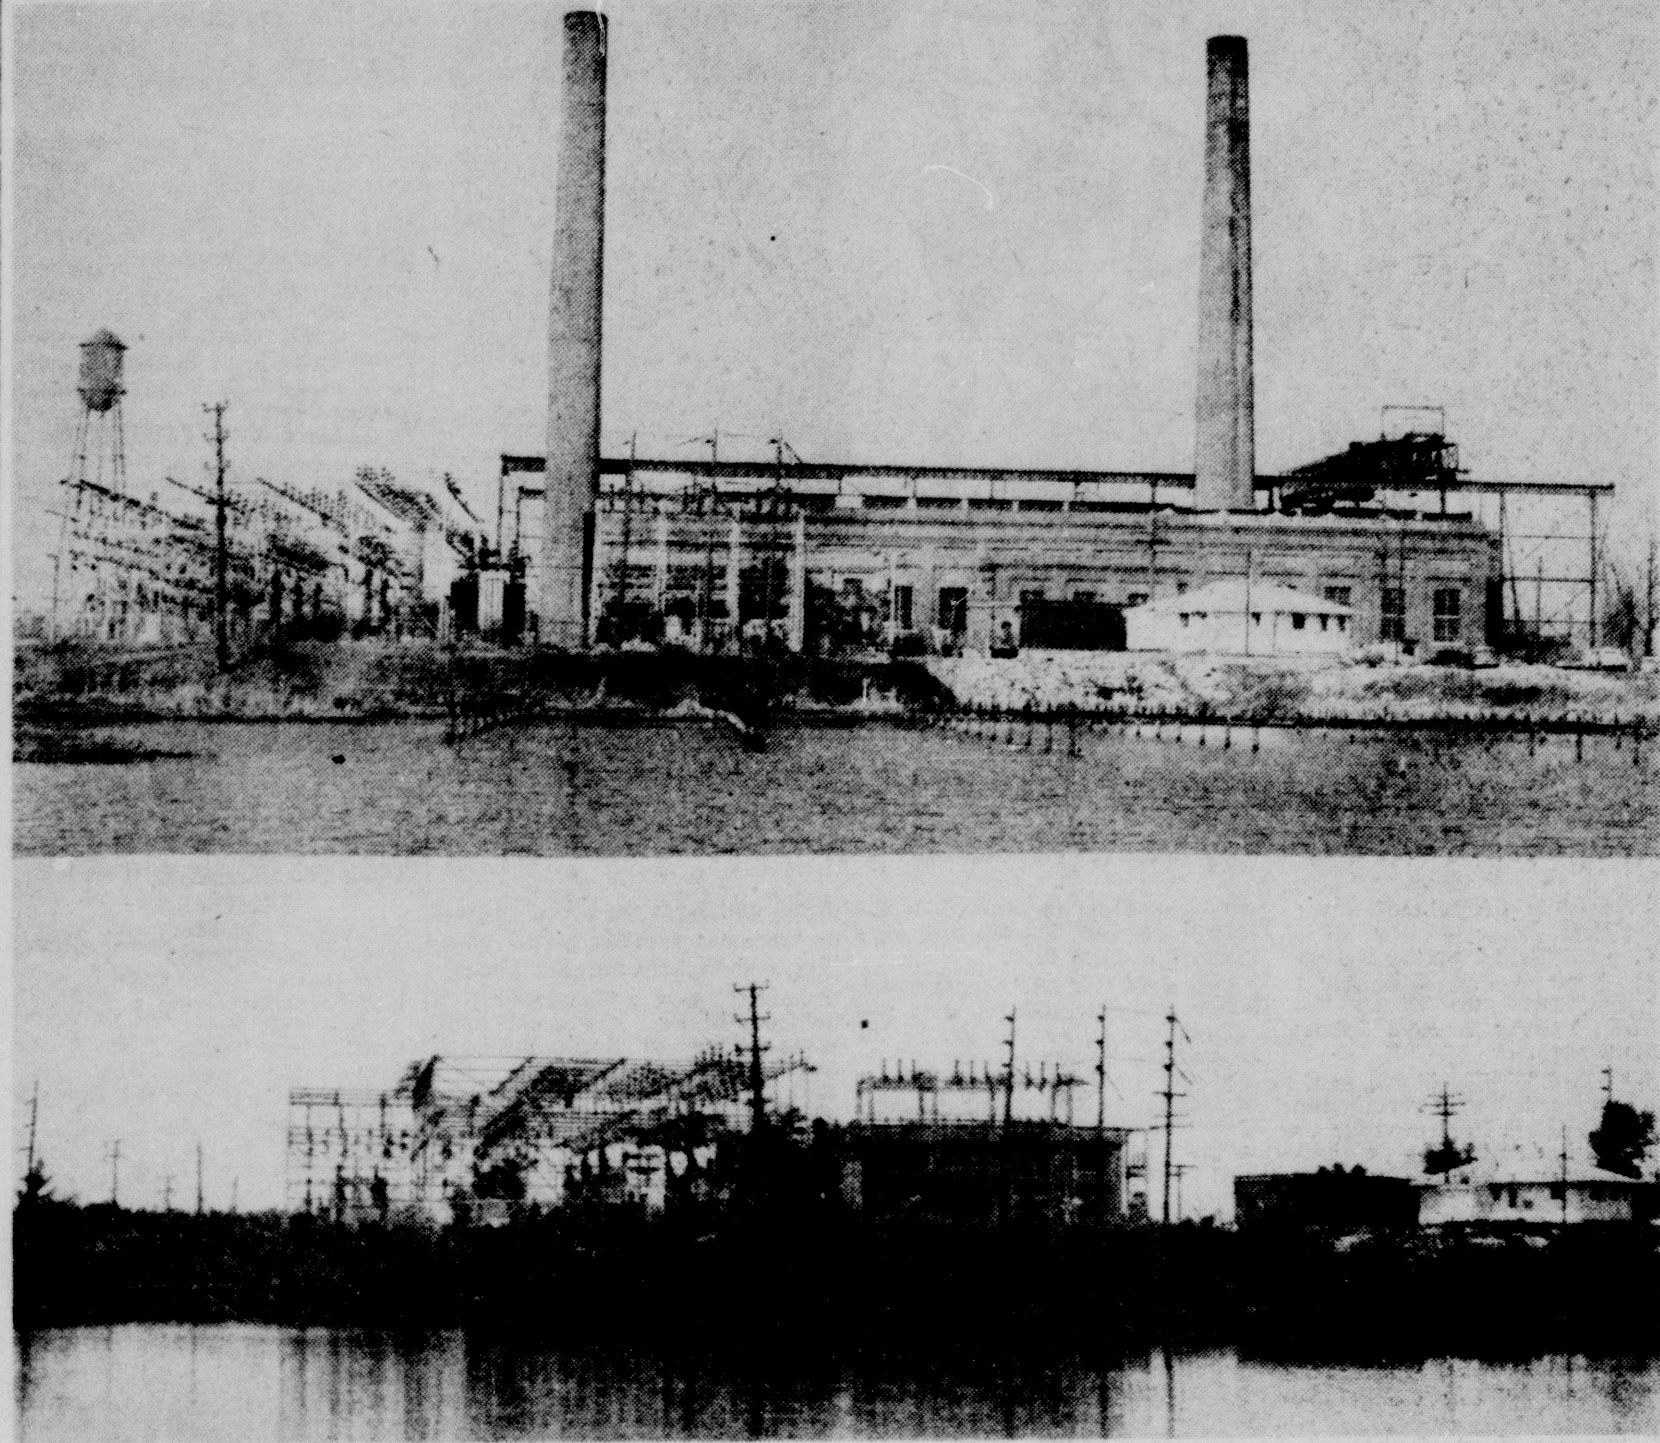

"I didn't mean to shoot anyone," she said.

Mrs. Seay told police she had met Cabay on the street only three months, at a New Year's Eve party and had not seen him again until Tuesday night, when they met at a tavern.

George L. Reed, son of Howard Reed, 621 South McKinley, received the bachelor of arts degree in English and Bible in commencement exercises Monday night at Anderson college, Anderson, Ind. Active in campus extracurricular affairs, Mr. Reed has been a member of the Booster club, men's social group and the Ministerial fellowship of the college. He served on the Men's committee and was elected to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities in 1954.

His parents and brother, Donald, another brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Reed and son, a sister, Mrs. Ruth Muge, and another sister, Mrs. Helen Fink of Evansville, attended the commencement exercises.

He will return to Anderson college next term to work on his master's degree.

Woman Claims Shooting Cop An Accident

CHICAGO (AP)—A 29-year-old housewife faced a possible murder indictment today for shooting a rookie policeman she said got "fresh" with her in his apartment.

Mrs. Bernice Seay insisted, however, that the shooting of patrolman Donald Cabay, 27, early Monday was an "accident."

Cabay was found dead on the sidewalk in front of the apartment building where Mrs. Seay and her husband, Forest, 37, live. Mrs. Seay said she forced Cabay at gunpoint to drive her home after a round of tavern visits that wound up in his apartment.

State's Atty. John Gutknecht said the Cook county grand jury would be asked today to indict Mrs. Seay for murder. Witnesses in the case were to go before the grand jury after an inquest earlier.

Both Mrs. Seay and her husband were held on open charges.

WSIL Purchases Equipment to Give On-the-Spot Telecasts from Area

WSIL-TV has purchased two-camera chain remote equipment which will enable the Harrisburg television station to give live, on-the-spot television to viewers from points over southern Illinois, it was announced today.

Plans are in the making, it was stated, to telecast various football and basketball contests in southern Illinois.

Fire Destroys Two Equality Residences

Two Equality residences, one a landmark, were destroyed by fire this morning.

Burned were houses occupied by Mrs. Charles Purcell and John Woods on Jackson street near the Equality water tower two blocks from the business section.

Damaged was the Presbyterian manse, which sustained a blistered roof. It adjoined the Woods property.

The fire, of unknown origin, started in the Purcell house. Mrs. Purcell, in her eighties, was alone at the time and was taken to Ferrell hospital in Eldorado upon the suggestion of her physician although she was not burned or injured.

The flames, which broke out about 7:30 a. m., quickly engulfed the Purcell home, which is more than 100 years old, then spread to the Woods house which was very close to it.

The Eldorado fire department was summoned but it was too late to do anything about the Purcell or Woods houses. However, the firemen succeeded in preventing the manse from catching fire.

Neighbors said that some clothing and bedding was all that was moved from the Purcell house. The Woods family succeeded in getting out a number of items. Mrs. Woods' hair was singed while removing articles.

Search Continues For Body of Rosiclare Woman

The body of Harold Johnson now lies in state at the Hosick funeral home in Rosiclare as the search continues for the body of his wife, Mary.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, residents of Rosiclare, drowned early Sunday when their auto ran off a ferry road at Elizabethtown and plunged into the Ohio River.

Mr. Johnson's body will lie in state several days at the funeral home and upon the finding of Mrs. Johnson's body the two will be shipped to Sinnamore, Wis., for burial.

Equipment will be carried to the scenes of the telecast by truck, with the following procedure to be followed:

Cameras are placed at the scene along with the switchers and power supplies. The signal is picked up at the camera and transmitted to a microwave transmitter which will be mounted on the truck — or if distance warrants on a tower beside the truck.

The signal is transmitted from the tower, reflected by a four-foot microwave dish which sends both audio and video signals to a like four-foot receiving dish to be mounted close to the top of the tower at the station.

Signals are picked up by the receiving dish and transmitted by cables to control equipment mounted in the engineering room. From there it is rebroadcast through the regular transmitter out through the present system.

Each of the two cameras to be used has three different lenses, which enables the telecasters to switch from long to close-up shots of action in front of the cameras.

In setting up for a live remote telecast, the line of sight must be maintained between the sending dish at the scene and the receiving dish mounted on the 500 foot tower at the station.

It will take this summer to work out the engineering detail, it was announced. Once the system has been set up, the station will be able to give on-the-spot coverage of scheduled events or disasters.

Rotarians Vote To Help in Boy Scout Fund Drive

John Metten and Ronnie Doerge were guest speakers at the weekly noon Rotary meeting yesterday. The two spoke on behalf of the Boy Scout drive in Harrisburg and solicited the aid of Rotarians in putting it across.

Following brief talks by each, explaining the need for the funds and the lack of support in Harrisburg during recent years, members of Rotary voted to lend their individual and group support to the project.

Funds obtained from Boy Scout drives in this community are used to develop leadership and to train individuals in many capacities relative to the work, Metten told the group.

Doerge pointed out that Sahara Coal Co. donated more to last year's drive than the whole community put together. Both men are members of the Kiwanis club, which is also supporting the drive wholeheartedly. They were introduced by John Foster, club president.

Other guests at the meeting were Donald Price, Belleville, and Luther E. Raley, Polo, Ill.

College Prexy Urges State Scholarship Plan

CHICAGO (AP)—A college president wants Illinois to set up a state scholarship program like the GI "Bill of Rights."

Dr. Edward J. Sparling estimates the state could pay the tuition for 40,000 needy students for 20 million dollars a year.

This would be cheaper, he said, than creating and operating a four-year Chicago branch of the University of Illinois.

Sparling, president of Chicago's Roosevelt University, discussed his plan in a talk before the City Club of Chicago Monday.

He said that he and presidents of five other private colleges in Chicago had agreed that a state-supported scholarship plan would be "very much more to the advantage" of students than a U. of I. branch.

Sparling said there was no pressing need for expansion of the Chicago branch and that present facilities of private colleges and universities were not being utilized. From 17,000 to 20,000 more students could be accommodated without further expansion until 1965, he said.

Under his proposal, the state would set up a scholarship fund. Needy students who meet the qualifications could get $500 a year.

The students would use the money to pay tuition at any of the 50 public and private colleges and universities in Illinois.

Sparling said a "precedent" was established in this field by the GI "Bill of Rights," under which the federal government paid college costs for thousands of World War II veterans.

He said the plan would aid all areas of the state, and allow a student to choose any 1 of the 50 colleges which would best suit his needs.

Funeral services for Louis Jones, a retired miner who died at his home yesterday morning in Eldorado, will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the Eldorado First Baptist church. Rev. O. C. Cooper will officiate, and burial will be in the Wolf Creek cemetery.

The body lies in state at the Martin funeral home.

House Group Asks Changes in Toll Road Act

Investigators File Majority, Minority Reports

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—The Republican majority report of the special House investigating committee today reported Illinois Toll Roads Commission Chairman Evan Howell "exceeded any settled policy of this state" in forming the National Turnpike Assn. and drew expenses "far in excess of what seems to members of the committee to be necessary."

The special committee on toll roads submitted both a five-member Republican majority report and a four-member Democratic minority report to the House. Both reports contained harsh criticism of Howell and recommendations for major changes in the 1953 Illinois Toll Road Act fathered by the administration of Gov. William G. Stratton.

While members who signed either report said the decision on retaining Howell as chairman of the commission was an "executive decision," they said "the reports will lead to our conclusion."

Criticizes Howell

The majority report said: "The chairman of the Illinois Toll Roads Commission, Evan Howell, in his testimony and by questioning by members of the committee about his connection with the National Turnpike Assn. and its organization and promotion showed that he had exceeded any settled policy of this state. The active solicitation of membership fees from contractors, financial firms and corporations was not in keeping with the standards and principles which should be followed by any member of the said commission and more particularly its chairman."

The National Turnpike Assn. tried to sell memberships to firms and individuals in road business at dues and fees of $1,250 for the first year.

"His expenses and travel were far in excess of what seems to members of the committee to be necessary."

"It was shown in the testimony that the commission had not acquired independent financial advice but instead had relied entirely on the preliminary feasibility report and upon the advice of the bankers and bond houses that would buy the revenue bonds."

The majority report said the committee "doesn't believe outright repeal" of the Toll Road Act "is necessarily called for" unless "all or substantially all of the proposed amendments are not adopted."

Blasted By Minority Report

The majority then listed eight areas where amendments to the law should be passed. Most of these also were recommended by the minority report.

On Howell's conduct the minority report said: "The chairman of the Illinois Toll Road Commission Evan Howell has so conducted himself in a number of ways as to tend to lessen public confidence in that body and to foster and create antagonism to its program."

It listed among Howell's blame:

Tonazzis Return From Visiting with Son in Hospital

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Tonazzi have returned home from Streator, Ill., where their son, Raymond, is a patient in St. Mary's hospital.

Raymond, who is a construction worker for the General Telephone Company of Illinois, received serious internal injuries May 23 while working with the crew in front of the telephone office in Minonk. According to reports the men were engaged in loading new cable onto a reel weighing approximately 5,500 pounds, and mounted in a trailer, when the trailer tongue flew upwards, lifting Tonazzi and a fellow worker off the ground and pinning them against the rear of the truck.

Raymond's condition is slowly improving. He wishes to thank friends for the cards and flowers and hopes to continue to hear from folks in this area.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY
The heavens declare the glory of God.—Psalm 19:1.

There are two hundred miles of air above us. That protects us from meteors that have pitted the airless Moon, and would have destroyed life on the earth save that the oxygen of the air burns up the meteors.

Farm Production Booms

Editorial — BY BRUCE BLOSSAT

Americans hear much about the way their remarkable economy goes on year after year producing more and more for less and less. Most of the time it sounds like a purely industrial story, but it isn't.

An important revolution has been taking place on our farms. Not much of it occurred before the 1930's, but in the last 20 years or more the forward strides have been tremendous.

In 1935 a U. S. farm worker turned out enough food and fiber to support 10 people. Today he produces sufficient to support 18. Farm output per man-hour in 1953 was 125 per cent above the 1935 level. That's the statistical measure of the American agricultural revolution.

All this time, Americans have been streaming away from the farms and into the cities and towns. In the last two decades the number of farm workers has declined one third.

Their place has been taken by machines, and these machines, along with better seeds, better planting techniques, greater use of fertilizer, soil conservation and other devices, have been responsible for the great boost in productivity.

In 1935 farmers had about a million tractors. By 1954 they had 4.4 million. In 1935 they had less than a million trucks. Now they have 2.6 million. The figures could be extended to many types of farm machines.

Reliance on fertilizer has mounted substantially. Consumption in 1935 was 1,153,000 tons, but today the annual tonnage is around 5,400,000.

The steady exodus of people from farm areas undoubtedly gave a strong push to the revolution. If output was to be maintained and increased, mechanization was absolutely essential.

Unquestionably, too, the heavy war and postwar demand for food and fibers exerted major leverage on the upward productivity trends. Farmers pour fertilizer onto their fields to step up acreage yields and meet the call of the market. In some cases, admittedly, tiring soils would not otherwise have turned out impressive crop totals.

The incredible days of great wartime and postwar foreign demand have passed. The nation today is plagued by surpluses from farms which have learned how to produce more than our own people seem to need at this time.

But, though the problem is to be handled, it is evident that the farm revolution has not ended. Technical advances tend to snowball, and besides, people are still leaving the farms in considerable numbers. Their departure goads farmers into fresh efforts to get more from their land with fewer men working fewer hours.

Our farms may never get to the point where they look like factories. But if productivity and mechanizing trends continue their present pace, the farms may in fact one day be factories.

Food stores are now selling about half of all retail fluid milk, as compared with about 10 per cent in 1930.

One Important Crop That Never Fails

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Russian Embassy Has First Call on United States National Park Volley Ball Court; Nixon Fails To Break Tie Vote; Lyndon Johnson Speeds Up Senate.

WASHINGTON. — If you want to play volleyball on a certain court in Rocky Creek Park near the Carter Barron Amphitheatre on Sunday or Saturday afternoon, you have to get permission from the Soviet embassy.

The embassy is quite agreeable about giving permission, but none-theless, if you want to play from noon to 9 p. m. on Sunday or from 2 to 9 p. m. on Saturday in this national park in the District of Columbia you have to ask the Russians.

This came about after the Soviet embassy applied to the District of Columbia recreation department in April to have the use of the volleyball court on Saturday and Sunday afternoons. The recreation department at first said no, on the ground that no such reservation had been given to any other group.

At this point, however, the State Department stepped in. The protocol office of the State Department, which also is a federal agency, and told them that the Russians would have to get the permit.

No explanation was given. But in diplomatic circles it was learned that the State Department is bending over backward to provide entertainment for the embassy staff in return for concessions to the American embassy staff in Moscow.

The recreation department was informed by the State Department that the FBI would keep an eye on the Soviet volleyball players, and later the FBI dropped in at the recreation department to see if the Russians were abusing their privilege. In the course of the conversation the FBI showed some pictures of the Russians in action.

The recreation department reported that the Russians had not abused their privilege. When the YMCA wanted to play a match with the Baltimore YMCA, the Russians relinquished the court in advance — though Baltimore later failed to show. Also, on another occasion, they gave up the court to the Press Club.

Next to the Russian court is a court reserved—though not for so long a period—by the Young Adult Fellowship League of the Lutheran Church. The two groups seem to enjoy volleyball though they can't always understand each other.

NIXON WASN'T THERE
GOP senators are sore at Vice President Nixon for costing them 200 Republican jobs.

It happened when Senator Coughlin of Indiana tried to push through a bill authorizing the Foreign Operations Administration to fire 200 Democrats now frozen in their jobs by Civil Service. Coughlin wanted them replaced, of course, by good Republicans.

The Senate vote ended in a 40-40 tie. Ordinarily a tie is settled by Vice President Nixon who casts his vote with the Republicans.

But Nixon was off on some political gallivanting, leaving the Senate's president pro tem, George of Georgia—a Democrat—in command.

George naturally took advantage of Nixon's absence to break the tie in favor of the Democrats. The Republicans got 200 fewer jobs.

LYNDON'S MACHINE
You have to be sitting in the Senate cloakrooms to appreciate the deftness of Sen. Lyndon Johnson's leadership these days.

Last week, for instance, the real-estate lobbyists thought they had enough votes lined up to kill the Democratic public housing bill introduced by Sen. John Sparkman of Alabama. It provided for more slum clearance than the Eisenhower bill sponsored by Senator Capehart of Indiana, so the real estate interests were opposed.

Working behind the scenes, the real-estate lobby had counted noses and figured they could get a considerable number of southern Democrats to go along with the Republicans. In fact, their secret poll showed they would win by 57 to 31. At that time they were dead right.

But they didn't count on the elongated, fast-talking leader of the Senate Democrats. Buttonholing his southern friends, Johnson persuaded them to support one of their own men. Which would they prefer, he asked a Sparkman bill or a Capehart bill?

Force will issue an urgent appeal to inventors to send in all ideas they can to help the Air Force—especially new techniques on guided missiles. If you can help, write to the Air Force Research and Development Center, Box 1395, Baltimore, Md. . . . One reason for the Army budget cut was that the Army had secretly earmarked several hundred million dollars for building its own independent air force. . . . The Democrats have finally paid off their 1952 campaign debt and will now raise money for 1956.

It happened when Senator Coughlin of Indiana tried to push through a bill authorizing the Foreign Operations Administration to fire 200 Democrats now frozen in their jobs by Civil Service. Coughlin wanted them replaced, of course, by good Republicans.

The Senate vote ended in a 40-40 tie. Ordinarily a tie is settled by Vice President Nixon who casts his vote with the Republicans.

But Nixon was off on some political gallivanting, leaving the Senate's president pro tem, George of Georgia—a Democrat—in command.

George naturally took advantage of Nixon's absence to break the tie in favor of the Democrats. The Republicans got 200 fewer jobs.

LYNDON'S MACHINE
You have to be sitting in the Senate cloakrooms to appreciate the deftness of Sen. Lyndon Johnson's leadership these days.

Last week, for instance, the real-estate lobbyists thought they had enough votes lined up to kill the Democratic public housing bill introduced by Sen. John Sparkman of Alabama. It provided for more slum clearance than the Eisenhower bill sponsored by Senator Capehart of Indiana, so the real estate interests were opposed.

Working behind the scenes, the real-estate lobby had counted noses and figured they could get a considerable number of southern Democrats to go along with the Republicans. In fact, their secret poll showed they would win by 57 to 31. At that time they were dead right.

But they didn't count on the elongated, fast-talking leader of the Senate Democrats. Buttonholing his southern friends, Johnson persuaded them to support one of their own men. Which would they prefer, he asked a Sparkman bill or a Capehart bill?

WASHINGTON. — If you want to play volleyball on a certain court in Rocky Creek Park near the Carter Barron Amphitheatre on Sunday or Saturday afternoon, you have to get permission from the Soviet embassy.

The embassy is quite agreeable about giving permission, but none-theless, if you want to play from noon to 9 p. m. on Sunday or from 2 to 9 p. m. on Saturday in this national park in the District of Columbia you have to ask the Russians.

This came about after the Soviet embassy applied to the District of Columbia recreation department in April to have the use of the volleyball court on Saturday and Sunday afternoons. The recreation department at first said no, on the ground that no such reservation had been given to any other group.

At this point, however, the State Department stepped in. The protocol office of the State Department, which also is a federal agency, and told them that the Russians would have to get the permit.

No explanation was given. But in diplomatic circles it was learned that the State Department is bending over backward to provide entertainment for the embassy staff in return for concessions to the American embassy staff in Moscow.

The recreation department was informed by the State Department that the FBI would keep an eye on the Soviet volleyball players, and later the FBI dropped in at the recreation department to see if the Russians were abusing their privilege. In the course of the conversation the FBI showed some pictures of the Russians in action.

The recreation department reported that the Russians had not abused their privilege. When the YMCA wanted to play a match with the Baltimore YMCA, the Russians relinquished the court in advance — though Baltimore later failed to show. Also, on another occasion, they gave up the court to the Press Club.

Next to the Russian court is a court reserved—though not for so long a period—by the Young Adult Fellowship League of the Lutheran Church. The two groups seem to enjoy volleyball though they can't always understand each other.

New Proposal to Regulate Spending in Elections Faces South Opposition

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON. — A new move in Congress' 50-year effort to enact realistic regulation of political campaigns was headed today toward possible trouble on the Southern front.

Awaiting Senate Rules Committee action was a proposal with subcommittee endorsement to hike spending limits for all federal elective contests, and to fix primary and pre-convention limits.

National Committee spending would be increased from the three million dollars fixed by the 1935 Hatch Act to about 12 million dollars. This presidential campaign spending figure would be calculated on a basis of 20 cents for each vote cast in any of the last three presidential elections.

Senate candidates could spend at least $50,000 and House candidates $12,500, but more in larger states where the maximum figure would be 10 cents for each vote cast in the last previous election.

Ten Cents A Vote
Senators now are limited to from $10,000 to $25,000 and representatives to from $2,500 to $5,000.

depending on the population represented.

The subcommittee proposal also would close a contribution loophole whereby an individual may make the maximum $5,000 political gift to as many organizations and candidates as he chooses. The new individual gift-limit would be $10,000 which could go to a single organization or candidate or be divided among several.

Candidates would have to assume responsibility for all spending in their behalf—so they couldn't get around the limits by having several separate committees working for their election.

The catch in this proposed legislation is that it would apply also to primary and pre-convention campaigns.

Southern members of Congress traditionally have balked at federal regulation of primaries. They have argued that the Constitution gives the federal government authority only over "elections" and that such authority does not extend to primaries.

Sen. Price Daniel (D-Tex.) reflected this historic Southern position today when he said, in commenting on the new proposals, that "I don't think Congress has any business controlling the primary campaigns. I think the states ought to set those limits."

There doubtless will be other Southern lawmakers who will take that position.

It is estimated that Republicans spent about 13 million dollars on the 1952 presidential and congressional campaigns; Democrats about $6,200,000.

Legislature to Kill Hundreds Of Record Bills

SPRINGFIELD. — The 69th General Assembly, which has submitted a record 2,078 bills, at the end of this week will kill hundreds of these measures by tabling bills still before committees of the originating House.

Three weeks of filibustering in the House have left the House calendar clogged and have cut down the time the committees had to spend in consideration of the bills.

This week will see strenuous efforts by sponsors to move legislation seriously intended for passage out of committees and onto the floor of the two chambers to keep it alive.

The session will reach its final adjournment date June 30, just 16 days away, unless the filibuster forces an unprecedented July session, as mentioned by House Speaker Warren L. Wood (R-Plainfield).

Since convening last Jan. 5, the legislature has passed a total of 241 bills. This means 1,837 still are on the House and Senate calendars or in committees.

Committees of each house at the end of next week will table bills of the opposite house, while bills originating in each house and on early stages of the calendar will be killed in advancing stages.

Of the bills passed, Gov. William G. Stratton has signed 143 into law, vetoed all or parts of 7, and still must act on 91 others.

None of the major items of legislation in this session have yet cleared the General Assembly. This includes major appropriations bills for schools and welfare, the city-

Easing of Tensions
A Snowballing
Process: Menon

WASHINGTON (UPI)—India's V. K. Krishna Menon said after a preliminary talk with President Eisenhower today that easing of world tensions is "a snowballing process."

"We're all making efforts to better the world," the roving ambassador from New Delhi said.

Krishna Menon, Indian delegate to the United Nations Trusteeship Council, flew here from New York to talk with Mr. Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles on how to insure peace in the Far East.

To newsmen at the airport he said, "things are looking a little better, aren't they?"

He conferred with President Eisenhower for 45 minutes in what the White House called "a preliminary discussion."

Krishna Menon said the fate of 11 American fliers imprisoned by the Reds did not come up at today's preliminary talk with Mr. Eisenhower. He reminded reporters that he recently had described the release of 4 airmen as "a conciliatory gesture" by the Communists.

Commission Report Criticizes Howell

worthy actions:

1. "Taking the chairmanship of the National Turnpike Assn. and lend to the questionable efforts of that group his personal support and the prestige of his office as chairman of the Illinois Toll Roads Commission."

2. "Certifying to the propriety of paying himself for commission funds of many items of expense, such as airplane fares, food, drink, newspapers, phone tolls, hotel expenses, gratuities, etc."

3. The committee said it was "reprehensible" that Howell used pressure against opponents of the toll roads through their superiors in the firms where they worked.

Recommendations
The majority report listed these recommendations for action by the Legislature in amending the 1953 Toll Road Act:

1. Creation of a joint toll road legislative commission.

2. Amendments to provide for "administrative review" of commission decisions.

3. "Set up effective provisions for the audit and approval of personal expense accounts before payments."

4. "Provide for payment of the prevailing wage scale on all construction."

5. Require "independent and impartial professional advice to the commission in engineering and financial matters."

6. "Provide for the inclusion as cost of construction and return to the state highway fund from the proceeds of any revenue bonds sold."

7. "Clarification of the act to show that it is not a mandate to build toll roads at all events but only where their construction will serve the best interest of the people of Illinois."

8. "Clarification of the language concerning separate bond issues for separate routes."

The Democratic minority report was critical of Governor Stratton for allegedly refusing to relinquish his authority under the 1953 act.

It said the entire committee had agreed on a recommendation to let the proposed joint legislative commission pass on route selection. But the Democrats said the Republicans carried this suggestion to the governor, who has final power to determine routes under the 1953 act, and he turned it down.

The minority report listed "five recommendations for a sound legislative policy."

1. "A general obligations bond issue backed by a motor fuel tax of 1 cent per gallon should be submitted to the voters at the general election in 1956."

2. "The Toll Road Act of 1953 should be repealed or the act amended to provide that toll roads can be constructed only as a part of the national system of interstate highways."

3. "A joint committee of House and Senate should be created to approve or disapprove the routes and to report their findings after consultation with the engineering department of the University of Illinois."

4. The minority said if these provisions are not adopted then "the General Assembly should stay in session" until Congress has acted on an interstate system of arrangements or a special legislative session should be made so Illinois can build toll roads in accord with the federal system and get available federal aid.

5. "Moreover, attempts should be made to increase user taxes (gas taxes and license fees) to provide more money if needed before resorting to the extravagance of toll financing."

The members who signed the majority report included Chairman David Hunter Jr. (R-Rockford), Louis E. Beckman (R-Kankakee), Ben S. Rhodes (R-Normal) and Mr. Walker (Danville).

Members on the minority report were Committee Secretary Clyde S. Choate (D-Anna), Jack Baird (D-Waukegan), C. R. Ratcliffe (D-Beardstown) and Joseph Lelivelt (D-Chicago).

COMMISSION DELAYS SALE OF ROAD BONDS
CHICAGO (AP)—The Illinois Toll Highway Commission today put off the sale of bonds for road construction until the Legislature decides whether to amend the Toll Road Act.

The commission promised to "co-operate to the best of its ability" in recommendations turned in by a special Illinois committee, which conducted an investigation of the agency.

Man-Eaters
Man-eating tigers usually are old and no longer able to catch and kill forest game. When once they find out how easy it is to kill men, they never stop.

The North Dakota state highway patrol will be increased from 40 to 49 men on July 1.

Impeachment Justice
The Constitution requires that the Chief Justice of the United States shall preside at impeachment proceedings against a President of the United States.

Bituminous coal production in Pike County, Ky., rose 71.5 per cent from 1940 to 1953, to 8,218,000 tons, from 3,792,000.

School Board Backs Valedictorian Speech Criticized as Un-American

DUNDEE, Ill. (AP)—The Dundee school board Monday night backed up a "brightest student's" right to criticize extreme patriotism and urge world federalism in his valedictorian speech.

The Class Night speech given by Willard Miller, 17, last May 26 had been criticized as "un-American" by the mother of a graduating student.

The mother, Mrs. Benjamin Covert, walked out on the speech and was quoted by School Board President Clark Melms as saying the address was "Communist and Red all the way through."

But the school board decided Monday night that Miller had a right to express his own opinion and it was not the faculty's duty to impose censorship unless his speech "transcends the recognized limits of freedom of speech."

"The speech did not transcend those limits," the board decided. Three hundred persons, including Mrs. Covert and young Miller, attended the meeting.

Mrs. Covert, who earlier had accused the school board of maladministration, didn't repeat her charges. But another school district resident, James Condon, got up to say "The faculty should have strongly discouraged such a speech."

The boy who touched off the controversy was described as the "brightest" member of his graduating class. His valedictorian speech included statements that:

"Excessive patriotism has been a contributing cause of most of the great wars... nationalism often changes the dove of peace into a mocking bird."

"The attainment of a federation of all humanity with sufficient measures of social justice... would mean such an increase in human energy as to open a new phase in history."

Young Miller said he gained material for his speech from the writings of English author H. G. Wells, from the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, and from an article on the late Albert Einstein published in Life Magazine.

Debbie Reynolds Denies Break in Relationship With Eddie Fisher

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actress Debbie Reynolds, after a secret weekend rendezvous with singer Eddie Fisher, insisted today they still are in love and plan to be married.

Miss Reynolds, who met vacationing Fisher in Palm Springs during the weekend, said "there has been no change" in their relationship despite reports they were breaking up.

"I love Eddie and he loves me and we will be married," the actress said. "We still have not yet set a definite date, however."

Forecast Warmer
Temperatures After
Low in Mid-40s

SPRINGFIELD — Record-low temperatures put an unseasonable chill over most of Illinois Monday night as the mercury dipped into the low and mid-40s.

The Weather Bureau here said the temperatures were record lows for both June 13 and June 14.

Shortly before midnight Monday the temperature reached 46 degrees, lower than the June 13, 1933, mark of 47. At 3 a. m. today the mercury stood at 45 degrees, well below the June 14, 1942, mark of 46.2 degrees.

But the forecast today was for slowly warming temperatures and fair skies.

Amputates Own
Foot by Cutting
Through Cast

WOLVERHAMPTON, England — Harold Millard, 57, amputated his own right foot by accident and without realizing it, Wolverhampton Royal Hospital reported today.

A medical spokesman said Millard, who had broken his right leg, was trying to relieve the painful pressure of a plaster cast with a hacksaw and cut all the way through it.

The spokesman said he severed the leg three inches above the ankle without feeling any pain. Doctors said the leg apparently was numb by the fracture.

The accident was discovered by his sister, Lydia who rushed him to the hospital.

"I asked him what he had done," Miss Millard said. "He did not seem to know. He was as surprised as anyone to learn that the hacksaw had gone through flesh and bone."

"He never lost consciousness. He has had a blood transfusion now and seems cheerful and anxious to get back to work."

Mother Indicted
In Death of Daughter

WHEATON, Ill. — Mrs. June Kelley, 22, today faced arraignment on a manslaughter charge in the death of her 4-month-old daughter Gloria June Feb. 8.

The Du Page county grand jury returned a manslaughter indictment against Mrs. Kelley Monday.

An examination showed the child died of a brain injury. Her mother told a coroner's jury she had slapped the baby a few days before her death. The child died while her mother was giving her a bath.

Observe 178th
Anniversary of Flag

By United Press

The Stars and Stripes flared out across the country today as the nation celebrated Flag Day.

Although the commemoration of the 178th birthday of the American flag was observed nationally, it was a legal holiday in only two states—Missouri and Pennsylvania.

President Eisenhower, in a proclamation, called for all Americans to honor the flag by displaying it today.

Also in Washington, an Army choral group, singing before the House of Representatives, was to give the first performance of a new song commemorating the flag.

Flag Day is in commemoration of the decision of the Continental Congress on June 14, 1777, to adopt the flag of 13 stars and 13 stripes as the nation's banner.

TWO-WAY STRETCH—Pee Wee Reese lunged full length, but Stanley Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals slid away from the tag and was safe at second base on a steal at Ebbets Field. Catcher Roy Campanella's high throw brought the Brooklyn Dodgers' shortstop off course.

Harry Grayson's SCOREBOARD

Mays Phenom No Longer, and Neither are the N. Y. Giants

NEW YORK (NEA)—Back what seems like only a few years ago, it was a familiar thing to see Ty Cobb leave his stock broker's office for the ball park.

Cobb, around this time, was hitting like .385 and taking the American League apart. His interest in the stock ticker did absolutely nothing to him—except make him rich, perhaps.

This came to mind when a recent poke was taken at the Champion New York Giants. The New Yorkers, somebody muttered, have been so busy worrying about outside business the $11,000 World Series share bought that baseball has been forgotten.

THE STANDINGS SEEM to back that up, too. Right about now, Leo Durocher and team are as soft as your morning eggs.

With this, it was pointed out one player is drawing on next year's salary in order to keep a liquor store in good spirits. Johnny Antonelli, becoming an expert on the art of shaver baths, has a tire business in Rochester.

Monte Irvin and Willie Mays are involved in a liquor store in Brooklyn. Sal Masie has whisked up to Niagara Falls on an off day here and there to check on his retail booze outlet.

Durocher, usually seen only at the ball park, now is in front of a guy whenever you look up. In the subway trains, Leo tells you from a slick poster vantage point to smoke a certain cigarette. He steams into your living room all night with television commercials calling for a clean shave or demanding an end to headaches via a new remedy.

ON PAPER, IT APPEARS a strong rap. That is, until you go back to Cobb. Or you merely go across the river to the Yankee Stadium. There, you find Yogi Berra knee deep in an ice cream venture.

At Brooklyn, Roy Campanella talks of his own liquor shop. Duke Snider says his California avocado farm does fine.

"That isn't our trouble at all," a member of the Giant entourage says. "Our trouble this year starts in the place you'd figure it wouldn't."

The man meant center field. Last year, Willie Mays was like a drug. Everything happened when Willie was around. But this season, it's different.

LIKE THE LONG FLY Randy Jackson of the Cubs hit to center field. Willie went back after it, thumping his hand into his glove. It was his all the way—only the ball popped out of his hands for a triple.

Then there was Sid Gordon, then with Pittsburgh. The aging Sid never a fleet one, was on first base when a Pirate single whistled into center. It was the kind of a play Willie used to love. He would race in, grab it for an out or get the ball back to the infield so quickly the runner was lucky to make second.

On this one, however, Gordon nonchalantly steamed past second and went for third. Willie's throw was three feet wide and Gordon was in.

Cincinnati Coach Dick Bartell ordered Wally Post to go for the plate on a fly to center field. It's no secret he wouldn't have done it if Duke Snider or one or two others were out there. Post beat the wide throw.

"WILLIE IS HITTING THE long ball, especially with men on bases," the Giant man points out. "His average will be fine and his home runs and runs-batted-in will up there."

"But he isn't making the big play—the game saver."

It seems the only thing hurting the Giants is themselves. Too many simultaneous batting slumps and whatnot.

Mays, the moving man in last year's pennant push, has come back to the field.

And he's brought the Giants with him.

Maxim Picks Archie

CLEVELAND (P)—Joey Maxim picked Archie Moore today to beat Bob Olson on June 22. Joey fought both.

Stanky is Given Permission to Negotiate for Job

FAIRHOPE, Ala. (P)—Eddie Stanky, dismissed St. Louis Cardinals manager, said today that by mutual agreement he has been given permission to negotiate for a job with another major league club.

"I want to stay in the major leagues," said Stanky, who was replaced by Harry Walker on May 28. "I know I could do some club a good job as a coach or in some other capacity."

Stanky said the agreement was reached with General Manager Dick Meyer of the Cards.

"Our relations have been very, very friendly," Stanky emphasized. The 37-year-old peppercorn who was a star of pennant-winning teams at Brooklyn, Boston and New York in his 11-season major league career, said he had been offered a job as scout in the Cards' organization, but had turned it down.

"I've also had several minor league offers, but I want a major league job," he stressed.

Zernial, Banks Hold Leads In All-Star Poll

CHICAGO (P)—Gus Zernial of the Kansas City Athletics and Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs held the leads today in the All-Star baseball poll.

Zernial, a left fielder, had collected 3,188 votes to forge ahead of the Chicago White Sox' Minnie Minoso by 182 votes.

Shortstop Banks held a 232-vote advantage over Johnny Logan of the Milwaukee Braves. Banks polled 3,559 votes to Logan's 3,327.

Votes cast in the poll are counted at headquarters by the Chicago Tribune. Fans casting their ballots in the poll will determine the American and National league lineups for the 22nd annual inter-league game. The game will be played in Milwaukee, Wis., July 12.

The poll opened last Friday and will continue until midnight July 1.

EYES HAVE IT

ST. LOUIS (NEA)—An eye examination and glasses made Bill Virdon of the Cardinals a major league star.

he is a savage, belting son-of-a-gun. He hits a lot harder than Olson. He's always dangerous, and Bob has nothing to keep him off."

GOOD BREAK—The White Sox were cheered when Minnie Minoso tried to work out after being in the hospital with a hairline fracture of the skull. The Chicago Americans kept right on moving without their star.

Tax Debt May Soon Surpass Assessed Value Of Nation's Property

NEW YORK (P)—The national debt may, by the end of fiscal 1956, be greater than the assessed value of all property in the nation, the Tax Foundation said today.

The current issue of the foundation's publication, "Tax Outlook," says that the national debt is slated to reach 276 billion dollars by the end of fiscal 1956 while the latest assessed valuation for tax purposes of all the nation's property is given at 240 billion dollars.

The non-profit research group reports that in 31 states the "share" of the national debt exceeds the assessed valuation of taxable property. The foundation used its own formula for allocating the federal debt among the 48 states.

Busch Denies Report Cardinal Club for Sale

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (P)—Both August A. Busch, owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Red Bird General Manager Dick Meyer, today branded as "ridiculous" a published report that the team has been "put up for sale."

The story appeared in the New York Herald-Tribune, under the signature of sports editor Bob Cooke. Cooke said that the sale was contemplated "because of the poor showing of the club, and because certain deals which the club has made are believed not to have been an asset to the sale of Budweiser beer."

Busch, who is also president of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Co., makers of Budweiser, strongly denied the report, saying, "There's as much truth in the story as there is to those about the man in the moon."

Meyer said he was confident that there "was nothing to the story," and added that there have been "absolutely no discussions along those lines."

Cooke also said that "Anheuser-Busch was willing to sell the ball park and the ball club for what they put into it or, failing that, even take a loss."

France Bans Auto Racing As Toll Mounts

PARIS (P)—France banned all automobile road racing today in swift answer to the Le Mans disaster.

But the toll of that tragedy Saturday continued its climb. Authorities at Le Mans counted the 82nd fatality early today. Hospitals still held 73 injured persons, some in critical condition.

Premier Edgar Faure's cabinet, meeting till after midnight to study the disastrous crash of a racing car in the Le Mans "24-hour endurance race," suspended further auto racing until the rules can be amended.

For France, the drastic action amounted almost to an American ban on football. Road racing is a major sport.

Le Mans paid its final respects today to the dead of the worst accident in racing history. Memorial services were held in the ancient Cathedral of Le Mans.

French Minister of Transportation Edouard Corniglion-Molinier, whose ministry authorized the race, told the cabinet Monday night that there was no precedent for halting a race in the event of death. France came under heavy international criticism for not stopping the week-end race immediately after the disaster.

The minister stressed that the frenzy of the crowd of 250,000 might have prevented the swift evacuation of the injured if the race had been stopped.

Cabinet members agreed that present racing regulations were insufficient to protect the public, and that for reason decided new rules must be drawn up. One possible rule change discussed would be banning different classes of automobiles from participating in the same race.

Jukes, James Win Kiwanis Tilts; Tie By Walker, Ronnie's

By David Nelson

Pitching was the outstanding feature in Kiwanis games Monday, with two no-hitters, a three-hitter and a four-hitter. Donnie Pickford, of the Mitch Golish Jukes, and Peck Boyett of James Bros. Fergusons, pitched no-hitters to lead their teams to 18-0 and 11-1 victories over the Wildcats and Pankey's Bakery respectively. Hatcher and Molinarolo hooked up in a pitching duel, with Hatcher allowing four singles and Molinarolo being touched for doubles and a single. This Walker's Cleaners-Ronnie's Studio game ended in a 3-3 tie.

The Jukes showed a well-balanced attack as seven players had base hits. Donnie Pickford led the hitters with three for three. Lowell Furlong hit a home run for the winners.

James Bros. showed they will be one of the leading contenders for the Kitty league championship as they downed Pankey's 11-1.

In the Walker-Ronnie's game, Walker's jumped off to a three run lead in the second inning when Dardeen walked, Henshaw was safe on an error and Crews doubled them both home. Vick doubled to score Crews with Walker's final run. Whiteside got Walker's other hit. Ronnie's scored all their tallies in the sixth when J. Cummings was safe on an error and Bishop, Spurlock and Alexander followed with singles. Spurlock led all the hitters with two safe blows.

Kluszewski Leads Reds to 6-4 Win Over Braves With Homer and Single

By United Press

You won't find Ted Kluszewski leading any of the three key departments today but the big Cincinnati Redleg slugger could become the National league's first triple crown winner in 22 years.

Kluszewski blasted his 18th homer of the season and a single Monday night as the Redlegs beat the Milwaukee Braves, 6-4, and snapped a three-game losing streak. Big Klus's two hits raised his batting average to .335 and he's driven in a total of 43 runs.

Kluszewski trails Brooklyn's Roy Campanella in the homer race by one but is far ahead of his 1954 place which produced 49 homers. Kluszewski hit only 14 homers in the Redlegs' first 51 games last season and didn't connect for No. 18 until their 65th game. As a result, he's 14 games ahead of last year's pace and a fair bet to challenge Hack Wilson's National league record of 56 homers.

Trails Ashburn, Snider

Kluszewski's 335 batting average leaves him 17 points behind the 352 mark of the Philadelphia Phillies' Richie Ashburn and he trails R.B.I. leader Duke Snider's 60 total by 17. Kluszewski hit 326 last season and batted in 141 runs.

Chuck Klein of the Philadelphia Phillies was the last National league champion in batting average, runs batted in and home runs. Klein did it in 1933 when he hit .305, drove in 129 runs and hit 28 home runs.

Kluszewski's homer tied the score in the first inning Monday night and negated Eddie Mathews' 13th homer of the year off Gerry Staley in the top of the frame. Smokey Burgess and Ray Jablonski also hit homers for the Redlegs. Jablonski's coming with two on in the fifth inning to high-light a four-run rally.

Column Wins Fourth
Relief pitcher Jackie Column, who took over for Staley in the fourth, gained credit for his fourth victory compared to one loss while southpaw Chet Nichols suffered his fourth defeat against five wins.

Warren Spain, a 21-game winner last season relieved for the fourth time this season for the Braves and yielded three hits in three innings.

It was the only game played in the majors Monday night but there's a full schedule in both leagues today and tonight.

In the American league, Cleveland plays a doubleheader at Washington and Chicago is at Baltimore.

DEATH OF A LEGEND
By WILL HENRY

For that $120 from the Winston robbery Jesse bought his own death warrant.

Governor Thomas Crittenden, who in 1881 had just come into Missouri's executive mansion, signed the lethal paper. Crittenden had campaigned for the governorship and won it smotheringly on an unprecedentedly simple platform: "The solemn determination to overthrow and to destroy the outlawry in this state whose head and front is the James gang."

Missouri law forbade the offering of more than $300 in reward money. When the news of Winston and Westphal's murder reached the state house, Governor Crittenden summoned a secret convocation of railroad-company heads to Jefferson City. One week after the Winston robbery, he called in the press and released the terms of the warrant Jesse had drawn with his own pistols:

A reward of $5000 for the capture of Frank and Jesse James and $5000 for the conviction of each is hereby constituted. It is understood that the railroads will supply the funds.

For the first time in 15 years a real price had been put on Jesse's head. Judas Iscariot had hired out for 30 pieces of silver.

While the huntmen prowled the orchestra pit, Jesse came out of the wings.

Curtain time was 8 P. M. of the evening of September 7, 1881. The stage was twice-familiar to the veteran cast—Blue Cut near Glendale, Mo.

Act One was redundant.

The pile of cross-ties athwart the rails of the Chicago & Alton roadbed. The scream of the whistle, the lock of the drivers. The rough, bearded men leaping aboard the slowing cars. The engineer covered and escorted to the express car by the nervously blinking star of the piece.

But Act Two had been rewritten by the leading man himself.

In the deviation, Jesse withdrew the second of his remaining mistakes from fate's dwindling account-book. For the first time in the history of the play, and for a reason known only to its author, Jesse introduced the members of the cast to its unwilling audience, the engineer and the express messenger.

"Allow me to introduce myself," he drawled. "I'm Jesse James."

Then without waiting for the applause:

"This is my brother, Frank James. The one with the big grin and the bad front teeth is my dear cousin, Wood Hite. That's Cousin Clarence Hite with him. This is Dick Liddell, Ed Miller, and Charlie Ford."

What possessed Jesse in this moment of peculiar rashness can scarcely be imagined. Nothing could have been less typical of him.

The only key was furnished many years later by the self-effacing Jim Cummins. Speaking to a Kansas City reporter in answer to the question, quiet Jim looked back across the years and said:

"After Northfield, Jess was never the same. He got a little crazy, I think. We always figured he never got over running out on Cole. Cole was really the smart one, you know. Nobody else could ever handle Jess after he was gone. We all thought a heap of Old Cole."

With his introductions made, Jesse returned to standard form for Act Three.

Total gleanings from the second Glendale cutting amounted to only $2000 in cash and jewelry.

The voluntary identification of the gang's members was on the telegraph wires within 20 minutes of the robbery.

The gang reached the hideout at the home of Frank James outside Nashville Sept. 19.

When Frank returned from a scout into Nashville and reported that William Pinkerton himself was in the city, the long-delayed disaffection set in.

Charlie Ford was the first to go, disappearing without saying good-bye, during the night of the 22nd. Clarence and Wood Hite followed 24 hours later. Dick Liddell was next to depart. He told Jesse that the Hites had gone to the family hideout in Kentucky and that Ford was heading for his Ray County, Missouri, farm. Ed Miller, brother of the dead Clell, stuck it out until that night, then announced that he, too, was cutting his stick.

Jesse looked at him a long time, finally nodded.

Even in his last den, the Clay County wolf had a plan. He had already let too many of the pack get away. Running loose as they were, their howling was bound to be heard sooner or later. This last one of them to leave had better be followed. It was the least a man could do. No use leaving Ed take to the woods alone. Or get off by himself where he could start to yapping.

For Frank, he had a parting piece of advice, one that rang a singular note of dark prophecy. "You'd best stick here, Buck. Things are going to pop up yonder. I'll get in touch with you."

He and Ed crossed into Missouri that same night, bound for the Samuel place in Clay County. Somewhere short of their destination, Jesse murdered Ed Miller.

Early on the morning of the 25th, a farmer who knew Jesse well saw him riding south of Norborne, Carroll County, "with a companion on a brown horse." Later that same day, the farmer heard a man's body had been found in some blackberry bushes north of Norborne. He rode over and had a look. It was the man on the brown horse. (To Be Continued)

Peron Vows to Force Church to 'Will of People'

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UP)—President Juan D. Peron accused Catholics of "treason" Monday night and vowed to force the church to bow to the "will of the people." Peron, who has been feuding with the Roman Catholic Church for months, threatened to suppress with the "greatest energy" any new outbreaks of violence by his opponents.

Peron formally accused Catholics of "planning and executing treason" during the weekend disorders in which at least 22 persons were shot or otherwise injured and 400 to 600 arrested.

The government previously charged Catholic demonstrators with desecrating the Argentine national flag and memorial plaques dedicated to Peron's late wife, Eva.

The pro-Peronista General Confederation of Labor called a general strike for tonight to allow workers to attend a monster rally in homage to the flag and the president's late wife.

Peron, in a 25-minute nationwide radio speech, denounced the church as a "wolf in sheep's clothing." He said that after 12 years of religious opposition the government has "earned the right to do justice."

Official Vatican spokesmen declined to comment on Peron's speech because it "might worsen the situation." However, a high church source, commenting unofficially on the threats, said "Hitler tried the same tactics."

Peron announced no new specific restrictions on the church. Since the church-state controversy flared into the open last November, the church has been stripped of many of its traditional privileges. A convention is scheduled to be held this year to amend the constitution and eliminate Catholicism as the official religion of the state.

General Says Red Cross Faces New Problems

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (UP)—The commanding general of the Continental Army Command has reported the Red Cross faces a host of new problems caused by the dislocation and strain of family life ever since the cold war began 10 years ago.

Gen. John E. Dahlquist, Fort Monroe, Va., said a constant movement of servicemen and their families has resulted from worldwide deployment and periodic overseas tours by about three million members of the armed forces.

"There are many problems facing servicemen today, but the hardest problem of all is the instability of their lives," Dahlquist told 4,500 chapter representatives at the 30th national convention of the Red Cross Monday.

"It is entirely possible that present programming and present financing does not contemplate work in this field, but I am sure that in the traditional manner of the Red Cross means can be found to fit the need. The over-riding consideration must be the possibility of giving needed personal services," he said.

Democrats Hope To Speed Voting At Convention

WASHINGTON (UP)—Democratic leaders recommended today that voting at the party's 1956 convention be speeded up to keep the TV-watcher from clicking off his set in exasperation.

An 82-member advisory committee proposed specifically that the television be spared from watching the tedious process of polling state delegations. That is the time-consuming procedure where there is a demand for each member of the delegation to announce his vote individually rather than having the total vote announced by the delegation chairman.

The committee proposed that the convention chairman be allowed to send a representative to the delegation to take the poll rather than conduct it himself during a roll call of states. The roll call then could continue while the delegation was being polled.

The committee rejected a proposal that the nose-counting be done off the convention floor. It said the wholesale departure and return of delegates would only result in "noise and confusion."

The committee also formally recommended that the 1956 convention abandon the controversial "loyalty oath" which caused an angry North-South split in 1952.

Instead of a loyalty oath, the advisory group adopted a three-point resolution, made public previously, setting forth the responsibility of state organizations in naming convention delegates. It provides for the ouster of national committee members who bolt the party ticket. This would have no effect on 1952 defectors.

Convention delegates, after being certified by state organizations, would be expected to participate in "good faith" in convention affairs. No further assurances would be required unless delegates were challenged.
